

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS

KNOW YOUR RESPONSIBILITIES

Activities that can result in disciplinary action against a teacher:

- Visiting inappropriate websites (i.e. adult content, racist, pornographic).
- Sending or forwarding offensive jokes and pictures via email.
- Online gambling using school board equipment.
- Downloading audio, video or text-based materials in violation of copyright laws.
- Using Board/Employer equipment to engage in activities related to a second occupation.
- Constant text messaging, instant messaging and or emailing during school time.
- Posting pictures of yourself and sharing them over the Net, especially if they are suggestive or inappropriate.
- Posting comments about students, parents, fellow colleagues or administrators online.
- Engaging in personal email exchange with students.
- Engaging in inappropriate conversations about fellow colleagues through emails or social networking sites.
- Criticizing principals, superintendents, school trustees or school boards, personally or professionally, online.
- Sharing confidential Board information through the Board email system or a social networking site.

WANT TO KNOW MORE?

www.media-awareness.ca

Media Awareness Network and its Web Awareness Program features lesson plans, classroom activities, background articles and Canadian resources for media education. It also offers practical tips for helping parents manage media in the home.

www.cyberbullying.ca

This is a great resource site for teachers, parents and students (only available in English).

www.ctf-fce.ca

For more information on this issue, please visit the Canadian Teachers' Federation Web site.

CYBERTIPS for Teachers

01001010100101
11001011101010
00010010010100

BE PROFESSIONAL

- Teachers are professionals and expected to model ethical and appropriate cyberconduct.
- Teachers hold a position of trust with students and will be held accountable if their actions expose students to inappropriate material or communications.

BE PRUDENT

At work:

- Maintain exemplary professional standards when sending email messages to students, parents, colleagues and administrators.
- Always keep a copy of your email messages.
- Use a teacher voice when communicating with students via email.
- Use Canadian spelling and grammar checks.
- Use a signature that includes your name, assignment title and school name.

But don't:

- Share your password with other colleagues or students.
- Leave your computer on and unattended when students are around.
- Send unnecessary attachments with your emails.
- Write emails using all capital letters – it comes across as shouting.

At home, don't:

- Use your home/personal computer to contact students or parents.
- Permit images of yourself to be taken and posted on any site without appropriate privacy safeguards.
- Post criticism of colleagues, students or administrators on social networking sites.
- Share confidential information about students, colleagues or administrators on social networking sites.
- Post confidential images and information about yourself on social networking sites.

BE PREPARED

Despite all precautions, if you find yourself the target of cyberbullying:

- Make copies of all questionable messages/web postings/information and other related materials and data, including the URL.
- Demand that the sender stop transmitting or posting the material and state that the conduct is unacceptable and inappropriate.
- Do not engage with the person who is targeting you as this may escalate the situation.
- Advise the administration of your school of the inappropriate communication if the situation requires immediate action and/or if the inappropriate communication continues.
- Access appropriate support/guidance through the school board/district cyberconduct policy or manual.
- Contact the parents of the student who is cyberbullying you.
- Inform and involve your school-based Occupational Health and Safety Committee.
- Contact your local teacher organization if the actions taken to address the inappropriate communication are ineffective and/or if you need further support/advice.

Forms of cyberbullying which are considered criminal acts:

- Communicating repeatedly with someone if the communication causes someone to fear for their own or others' safety.
- Publishing a defamatory libel – something that is designed to insult a person or likely to hurt a person's reputation by exposing him or her to hatred, contempt or ridicule.

Spreading hate or discrimination based on race, national or ethnic origin, color, religion, age, sex, sexual orientation, marital status, family status or disability may be a violation of the Canadian Human Rights Act and/or provincial/territorial human rights legislation.

If there is a question as to whether the inappropriate communication is criminal or not, call the police. At this point it may also be necessary to involve Internet Service Providers (ISPs) and Mobile Telecommunications Service Providers in addressing the inappropriate communication to the point of deleting the offending material from temporary/permanent sites and archives.

REMEMBER

Nothing is truly private when you use digital communication. When you are using Board equipment and communication links, the Board can access all your messages and online sites visited if any of this communication went through Board servers or has been accessed using Board equipment.